VISIT
WEBSITE

Creating my own website was by far the most complex project I have committed myself to. It went through several iterations in terms of both design and technology. In addition to being fully mobile responsive, the current version was built with ReactJS, and now showcases several other projects which demonstrate the skills I possess.

WEBSITE

A minimalistic website I created for a client to serve as his home page where he can promote his music. It was built with HTML, Sass, JavaScript and a dash of PHP. The project features both a light and a dark version which can be toggled on and off with a button, and it is also fully mobile responsive.

This project focused on attractive design and animations. Aside from using HTML, Sass, and JavaScript as the foundation, this website uses GSAP and jQuery for its animations, as well as CSS Grid for the base layout. It is also mobile responsive.
